Introduction

This guidance sets out the VAT treatment of the wholesale and retail supply of bread.

For information on the VAT treatment of other food and drink sold by wholesalers/retailers or on the VAT treatment of restaurant & catering services please see Revenue's guidance on Food and Drink Supplied by Wholesalers and Retailers and Restaurant and Catering Services.

1. Bread products taxable at the zero rate of VAT

The wholesale and retail supply of bread products (such as sliced pans, batch bread, bread rolls, vienna rolls, wholemeal bread, wholegrain bread, multigrain bread, baps, blaas, bagels, naan bread and pita bread) is liable to VAT at the zero rate only where the particular bread product supplied conforms with the definition of bread as set out in the Value-Added Tax Consolidation Act 2010 (VATCA) as reproduced in the Annex below. Otherwise the reduced rate of VAT applies.

2. Bread products taxable at the reduced rate of VAT

Supplies of bread products that do not conform to the definition of bread are liable to VAT at the reduced rate. Such bread products may have levels of permitted ingredients (sugar, fat, dried fruit, vegetables, herbs or spices) that exceed the weight limits specified in the definition or may contain other ingredients that are not listed in the definition. Examples of some of the bread products liable at the reduced rate include croissants, cheese-breads, cheese bagels and brioche. Crispbread products are also liable to VAT at the reduced rate.
