Notes

1. Professional Services Withholding Tax (PSWT) deducted from payments received for professional services may be set-off against the liability on the profits in which such payments are included. Any excess of withholding tax over that liability falls to be repaid.
2. Interim refunds may, however, be made when certain conditions are satisfied. The main conditions are as summarised in the declaration overleaf.
3. A person claiming an interim refund in respect of his / her first basis period from commencement of trading should ignore the conditions in the declaration overleaf and should supply the necessary particulars to enable the Inspector to make the estimates required by Section 527(4)(a) TCA 1997. The date to which the first accounts will be prepared should also be stated.
4. Where a person claims and proves the presence of particular hardship the Revenue Commissioners may waive (in whole or in part) one or more of the conditions in the declaration overleaf. Such a person should delete from the declaration the condition(s) not met and should furnish full particulars in support of his / her claim.
5. The claim accompanied by the Form(s) F45 / 1 should be sent to the Revenue office dealing with the claimant's tax returns.
6. Any person who knowingly makes a false statement for the purpose of obtaining a repayment of tax is liable to heavy penalties.
